GlenWyvis Newsletter January 2016

Welcome

The Festivities are over and we are now well on our way into 2016. January may be a quiet time for many other business's but here at GlenWyvis the wheels are turning and the project is picking up pace. 2016 will be the year that the landscape of Dingwall is changed forever with the arrival of a new truly unique distillery. As always if you would like to be added to our investors list please register your interest at info@glenwyvis.com.

GlenWyvis Announce Investment Date

What everyone has been waiting for! Your chance to own a piece of Scotland's first 100% crowdfunded Scotch malt whisky distillery. On the 16th of April 2016 you will get the chance to own your piece of a new Highland distillery and be part of history, 270 years to the day since the Battle of Culloden. Construction on the whisky distillery is due to commence this summer with distilling production scheduled for the 25th of January 2017. Full investment details will be contained within the prospectus released online and locally that day. GlenWyvis...the very Scottish Scotch malt whisky. Built on history...powered by nature.

GlenWyvis Built on History

January is a very significant month for GlenWyvis as it is a time that we like to think about and appreciate the rich Scottish history of the area that has influenced us. One of the most famous distilleries in Scotland was the Ferintosh distillery which was originally established in 1690. It was unique as it was the only distillery that was allowed to produce whisky without having to pay duty. Eventually this privilege was revoked, resulting in a quick down turn and closure of the long standing distillery of Ferintosh. It had become a favourite of many all over the country including our national bard – Robert Burns. You can read more about our unique Scottish history at www.glenwyvis.com/history. It is our unique heritage that drives us forward to return traditional local distilling to the area.

Burns Day

As many of you know Burns day is a day that holds huge significance in Scotland and no one looks forward to it more than everyone here at GlenWyvis. Robert Burns is a big influence for us, as previously mentioned Burns was a fan of Ferintosh and in his poem "Scotch Drink" he lamented "Thee, Ferintosh! O sadly lost! Scotland lament frae coast to coast!" The 25th of January is also the birthday of our founder John Fraser McKenzie - his vision remains that our champion haggis from Dingwall should be accompanied by an equally famous dram-The Dingwall Dram, GlenWyvis. Craig was out and about with his bagpipes spreading the GlenWyvis message. His first stop was on Friday the 22nd where he piped for the Burns supper at one of our local outlets, Corner on the Square in Beaulieu. It was a fantastic evening with great food, drink and music. Craig was given a wee dram of our very own Burns Nectar to quench his thirst after playing, very appropriate for the evening! On the 25th Craig was out again playing one of the more famous Burns tunes – A man's a man for a' that – high above Dingwall at our future distillery site. Thanks to all of you here and the thousands of people around Scotland who are following us online at home and abroad-we plan to increase this further prior to April 16th, please continue to spread news of our investment"

Huge congratulations to the Cotswolds Distillery who crowdfunded £1million pounds in 7weeks, successfully reaching their target 1 week early!

Remember its Valentine's Day soon! For her a bottle of GlenWyvis Gin, for him a bottle of GlenWyvis Burns Nectar
